

CLASS IS NOTHING TO LOL ABOUT

CLOE POISSON | CPOISSON@COURANT.COM

TAYLOR PAISST, of West Islip, N.Y., glances at instructor Nick Romani after she rear-ended a pickup truck while texting during a distracted driving simulator course at the University of New Haven Wednesday. The simulator course, called Distractology 101, is housed in a mobile van that will be parked at the school this week through Saturday. The course is free.